

This poster was part of an initiative series to represent the non-traditional students we have in specific career programs in our school district and to bring a new perspective and vision to our available programs. This poster features a Welding program student who has achieved her goals through her years in our school district and is looking to further herself by bringing what she has learned into the workforce. A new outlook on what we offer, featuring current students, helps to set the tone about who we are and how students thrive in our school environment. This poster was printed and framed, hanging in our Board of Education hallway entrance as well as our Piscataway Magnet School foyer and Welding classroom, where the student goes to school. We also posted this on our social media platforms and included a page in our quarterly newsletter to reach our external audience, and received positive feedback and acknowledgement from students, teachers, parents, and the rest of our community.
