

The purpose of this story was to share the good news of an 'Excellent Progress' designation by the state for Haynes-Inman Education Center. The state shares report card data for schools every year, but this story was an opportunity to shine a light on a population of students who are not usually included in these releases. The story aired on GCSTV, YouTube as well as Facebook and Instagram in September 2024. It supports effective communication by sharing this school's status with a greater audience. Haynes-Inman Education Center is a very special school, and they deserve to be highlighted for the great things that are happening there for students. This story was very well received by folks in the EC community, the school staff and others. It was viewed online nearly 7,000 times with many positive comments on social media.
