

Shadle Park High School and theatre director Henry Seipp are embracing the opportunity to include members of marginalized communities in recent productions at the school. The inclusion has yielded some wonderful moments on stage. The video's purpose was to provide an example of how members of marginalized communities can find success in the right classroom setting, especially when a veteran teacher is open to the possibilities. This video was intended for the entire district community and was very well-received on our social channels.